

Grads in Jobs Not Requiring a Degree

About 40% of recent college graduates and one-third of all college graduates are estimated to be employed in a job where a degree is not necessary.

■ Recent graduates    / College graduates

Source: New York Federal Reserve

Note: The rate is defined as the share of graduates working in jobs that typically do not require a college degree. A job is classified as a college job if 50% or more of the people working in that job indicate that at least a bachelor's degree is necessary; otherwise, the job is classified as a non-college job